Guild of Societies Social & Behaviour Policy for Individual Members

Introduction

The Guild of Societies recognises the value of social activity to compliment individual Society activity for its members. Social activity builds friendships, bonds and communities among the Society and can support individual and group development.

However the Guild of Societies also recognises that in some situations, such social activity can pose physical and psychological risks if due care is not observed by those involved. In line with this, the Guild of Societies encourages all Societies and members to drink responsibly.

This policy further explores the role and responsibility of Societies, their members and their committees in relation to all their activities.

This policy includes:

1. University Code of Behaviour
2. Your Personal Responsibilities
3. Welcome Events, Team Building, Socials and “Initiations”
4. Guild of Societies Management of Behaviour within Societies and Potential Sanctions for not adhering to this policy

1. University Code of Behaviour

All Society members are reminded that they and their members are bound by the Cardiff University Student Code of Behaviour. This Code of Behaviour states:

“This Code shall apply to all students when they may reasonably be regarded as being under the auspices of the University. This shall include behaviour arising at any time when the student may be regarded as representing the University as an individual or as part of a team or group.

A student shall not engage in conduct which may involve an offence against a person; cause a nuisance, damage, deface, misappropriate or misuse any property of the University and the Students' Union; or otherwise behave in a manner likely to bring the University into disrepute or likely to cause offence to others.

A student shall not engage in any form of harassment towards other students which causes, or which might reasonably be expected to cause distress by such means as bullying, verbally or physically abusing, ill-treating or otherwise creating or maintaining a hostile environment for that other, including via the use of social networking sites, other websites or any other forms of electronic media and communication.

This code of behaviour applies without geographic restriction, can be applied whether activity is official Society activity or not and also relates to behaviour whilst travelling to and from Society events.

2. Your Personal Responsibilities

The Students' Union expects that all Society Members take all reasonable steps to ensure that it and its members conduct themselves in a manner that does not reflect negatively on their Society, the Guild of Societies, Students' Union or University and does not place any person in a situation where they are likely to be harmed.

As a member of a Society, you are bound by these guidelines and you should at all times act in a reasonable manner, obeying the law, any University or Union Policy and in a manner that does not put any other individual at risk.

What you need to do?

We expect that all Societies, members, committees and other representatives:

- Will show appropriate respect towards members of the public, members of Cardiff University and other institutions, at all times
- Will behave responsibly and not act in a way that may damage the image of the Society or bring the organisation into disrepute, or put any individual at risk of harm
- Will not encourage or coerce individuals into undertaking anything that they do not wish to do

3. Welcome Events, Team Building, Socials and “Initiations”

The objective of welcome events is to allow members to meet, socialise and build relationships within a Society. This is often done by encouraging groups of people to undertake activities outside their “comfort zone”. The Guild of Societies only supports such activity:

- Where it is undertaken in a manner that does not place undue risk upon those involved, and
- Where it is not humiliating, unlawful or degrading to the individual or wider, and
- Where you are not forced to consume any fluid/substance and
- Where you are free to participate or abstain as they see fit, and
- Where you have no fear of reprisal or consequence for non-participation in some or all of the activity, and
- Where the activity does not bring the reputation of Cardiff University, Cardiff University Students' Union or the Society into question or disrepute.
- Where a sufficient number of responsible persons should refrain from consuming alcohol to supervise and monitor activity. They should be identified to you beforehand to ensure you are aware of who you can seek support or advice from, and
- All reasonable steps should be taken to ensure that you are not left to make their way home alone from Society social activity

The term “initiation” has in recent years been linked to activities and behaviour that seek to humiliate new members, often involving excess alcohol. The Guild of Societies does not condone any such activity or encouragement of such behaviour.

If you have any concerns throughout any Society activities you should seek an appropriate committee member to raise these with. If you do not feel comfortable with this then feel free to contact the Guild of Societies directly.

4. Managing Behaviour within your Society

A culture of poor behaviour can develop where a Society fails to tackle (or endorses) poor behaviour. We expect that:

- Societies are responsible for the actions of their members
- Societies work to ensure that all members are appropriate representatives of a Society
- Societies will take appropriate action to manage behaviour.

We expect Societies to take positive action to prevent inappropriate behaviour. This should include:

- Clear communication of expected standards of behaviour to all members
- Society activities and events to be organised with consideration of how to encourage appropriate/discourage inappropriate behaviour of members
- Challenge inappropriate behaviour of members when it occurs and taking appropriate action. This action should be proportionate, but clearly demonstrate that inappropriate behaviour will not be tolerated. Such action could/should include:
 - Unofficial or official warnings
 - Suspension of access to some or all Society activities
 - Reporting of individuals/incidents to the Students' Union

If a committee need support or advice to undertake any such action, the Students' Union and Guild of Societies will be happy to assist.

We strongly advise Societies to work to create a policy which can be shared with members and demonstrates that inappropriate behaviour may mean members are restricted from undertaking Society activity.

If a Society fails to take appropriate action to manage behaviour of its members, the Guild of Societies reserves the right to take action against individuals and the Society as a whole in order to tackle behavioural problems.

5. Guild of Societies Management of Behaviour within Societies and Potential Sanctions for not adhering to this policy

If the Guild of Societies becomes aware of potential behavioural issues, it will work with various stakeholders to ensure a full investigation is conducted. Such stakeholders will include but not be limited to the Union and University staff, other institutions, venues and the police.

Any breach of this policy may result in one or more of the following (please note this is not an exhaustive list):

Society sanctions:

- Suspension or removal of access to facilities and Student Union transport.
- Removal of funding or resources.
- Responsibility for reimbursement for any damage or financial loss.
- Suspension or removal of Societies from relevant events, competitions or frameworks.
- Downgrading of the Society's Tier status.
- Disbandment of the Society.

Individual sanctions:

- Suspension or removal of the individual from all Society activity.
- Responsibility for reimbursement for any damage or financial loss.
- Suspension or removal of the individual from all Students Union activity.
- All cases may be communicated to the University for them to consider whether appropriate action is necessary within their code of behaviour.

Please be in no doubt that any breach of this policy could result in a student(s) being excluded from the University.
